Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, March 23, 2013 – 10:00 a.m.

These messages are adorned with grace, that which we infuse in you through this very special form of writing. They are increasingly accepted and appreciated. The pure in heart find substantial nourishment in them – thus the main objective is achieved, one might say. This long cycle of messages is nearing completion. Hasn't everything been mentioned, suggested here, in the context of these thousands of messages! They will remain the celestial manna of our Mission, and they will continue to act on those fervent hearts that are capable of perceiving their level of richness.

The Mission is expanding throughout the world and will continue to do so. The difficult times ahead will not hold back this redeeming wave that can help humans on the spiritual journey. It is good to take stock, in this circumstance; we are doing the best for all.

That which is not understood or accepted today will be so tomorrow. Since people's minds will have evolved, all will accept this principle of communication with what you call the hereafter. There are different forms of channelling, and especially different levels of consciousness to which not all beings endowed with this faculty have access. This is worth considering here, where by special grace, only certain beings can have access.

These few details had to be given here to clarify the situation. In this matter, let us see only what is beautiful, the grace that is being showered on our brothers and sisters in these blessed moments, when the interiorisation of each one allows a special reception of these writings.

May all our brothers and sisters take full advantage of this heavenly achievement – they are so very blessed. This is how it is.
