Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, August 8, 2013 – 10:00 a.m.

Be at peace, dear soul. Everything is for the best under the sky of this beautiful Sahaj Marg Mission. As we have said time and again, it is advancing despite human turbulence. What is perfect on Earth! No human being is. The essential thing is to act in the right direction, towards the elevation of souls thirsty for the Divine. Despite appearances, there is no lack of such souls. Many are revealed over time, and they discover within themselves this need to advance towards the noblest of goals.

Since its creation, this world has been in a perpetual state of flux from which, one day, the best may emerge. This may seem utopian today, but what is positive is not necessarily measurable. Our Mission is growing, it is advancing, and there are beautiful souls following in our wake – for us, these are matters of great significance. Blessed are those who are advancing in an incarnation and managing to move beyond the stage of ignorance. It all seems slow, but what do human beings know about the great divine plans and the extent of what those plans can produce? Humans are limited to their own condition, to the narrowness of their perceptions. What precisely do the great 'scientists' know? They try to understand, and sometimes go in the wrong direction; their criteria remain human and therefore limited. Some have been truly inspired and able to proclaim that the Earth is round, something that was not accepted at the time. The truth is not always easy to see but that is how it is. This world is making progress against all odds; such is the aim of our action. Blessings to all.
