Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, August 25, 2013 – 10:00 a.m.

Life is never easy – humans come to learn on this Earth where all kinds of lessons abound. What would humanity be without this prospect, this means that allows them to try to understand the why of things and the realities of life. Humanity has different levels of consciousness, of vibrations which are more subtle in some beings who are refined. Such beings are in some way beacons, examples for the common run of people.

Achieving perfection is not feasible in one incarnation; it takes time and effort to reach the goal. Following a spiritual path is a big help when the incarnate Master has the necessary power to change a person at the most subtle level of the being. This path is worth following; it ennobles the whole being, in the sense that it opens doors that are inaccessible without proper help. It is not easy for humans to integrate all of these principles, this need for them to make an effort and to participate in a general and essential movement for the transformation of this world. Few people are interested, as they have absolutely no idea of this cosmic reality whose power over the whole creation is limitless. Knowledge, on the other hand, is very limited here below. Those beings who are most refined have an approach to reality, but the true nature of reality is, and will remain, inaccessible at the human level.

Everything has its purpose. Following an effective spiritual path is a godsend; it testifies to the aspirant's call, to his or her determination to progress and to try to understand and move towards knowledge. That is the beginning of a sanctifying process.

All of them are blessed.
