Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, October 5, 2013 – 10:00 a.m.

Words, in this context, are blessings. Thus, in their own way, they embrace the hearts of our brothers and sisters. To love with such a love is a rare blessing; it enchants, it captivates the whole being. To love in this way is to possess a real treasure – how very sad are those who do not have it. Our aspirants are advancing in this direction, one that goes straight to the desired objective: the winning over of this heart that holds so many treasures. Our work is geared towards this and will find its place more and more among the many beings in need of a genuine and profound transformation within themselves. Our speech may seem surprising today, but we must express ourselves in this way.

This day is special, as a unique vibration is running through this entire Mission. Blessed are those who feel its effects; they are thus able to enjoy the benefits even more. Many events that are taking place are beyond human perception. Our brothers and sisters are on their way, advancing towards new times that will be spectacular in their effects. Everything happens slowly but surely on Earth; the results are there, and they constitute a true asset. May all benefit from them and grow according to their aspirations.

Blessings.
