Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, October 17, 2013 – 9:30 a.m.

Life in this incarnation is given to human beings so that they can grasp the true meaning of this Earthly journey. Does one always succeed? Surely not, but each step of an incarnation is a lesson allowing one to better understand the reasons for one's various experiences. A person has all kinds of them, but does he or she always understand the true meaning of these trials? That is not easy; it requires a certain amount of wisdom to be able to make sense of things. Consider the example of a great spiritual Master – his life is not easy either. He is constantly confronted with the turmoil of this world, with its many – and sometimes unpleasant – aspects. No one is spared. This planet has its own peculiarities, and others have theirs.

The Earth is not the only inhabited planet as many human beings still believe; they would be very surprised to discover the truth. But let us not extrapolate. An incarnation is not so easy to take on; it would be better to comply with the laws prevailing here below and to do one's best. All in good time. One day, our brothers and sisters will continue their journey elsewhere – and under our guidance, as is proper. Beyond this world, our faithful abhyasis are followed and guided as required for their evolution. All will reach the goal; their commitment is not in vain, as it opens doors for them to which they would not otherwise have had access. May all rest assured that their commitment within our Mission – at whatever level – provides them with a valuable monitoring. All should be convinced of that.
