Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, December 8, 2013 – 10:00 a.m.

All experiences are necessary, including trials. Humans cannot easily understand this principle that relates to human evolution, but it is somehow the basis of a divine order prevailing in this world and elsewhere, on other planes of consciousness. Understanding the need to advance spiritually is a great step forward on this initiatory journey. Not all human beings have this opportunity; it can take time to realise how much a process like this contributes to the unfoldment of the whole being. Life remains a mystery for most people; trusting the Master on a path like ours is decisive. Whatever one's personality, none can personally solve this divine equation. Time does its work. Embarking on a spiritual path denotes a certain wisdom and shows the potential within the seeker. A call of this kind is always heard. Nothing is insignificant; everything is taken into account and recorded in the realm where humans, in their smallness, are never ignored. All our abhyasis are on their way and guided according to their deep longing to be united with the Divine, under the protection of the enlightened Master who was destined for them. Thus do all individuals proceed according to their profound motivation, so that the best can be accomplished with our assistance accompanied by our blessings.
