Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, January 1, 2014 – 10:00 a.m.

Time, as it is measured on Earth, does not have the same values as it does here; ours are completely different. Each of the created worlds has its own laws, and living beings must comply with them. This is the way it is. How can we bring Earthlings to accept that they are not alone, contrary to what they believe? We will not insist any further, as we would not be understood; the time has not yet come when true knowledge can be revealed and accepted. Humans have their reference points, their habits, and especially beliefs that are passed along through the ages, without much advancement in the discovery of the truth. Some still believe that it cannot be revealed, that humans are not sufficiently mature and evolved; true knowledge, to a large extent, is not given to them. Such are the false assumptions and erroneous judgments that are maintaining humans in the current stage of ignorance.

We can only let time do its work; the spectacular changes it will bring about will enable real progress in this area. May people's minds open up and see the truth, opening the way to a subtle approach of life in terms of the greatness it generates, which is currently out of reach and yet is so desirable for the good of all. In this, we must comply with the laws and customs of this world without moving too far ahead. These messages, in terms of the type of transmission they rely upon, are not yet understood by everyone.

In this season of good wishes, let us express our own: we wish the best to all, within the time and scope allocated to us.
