Whispers from The Brighter World

Many of our abhyasis view these messages as playing an important part in their spiritual commitment. All the spiritual ways of the past were likewise based on a teaching of this kind, which remains one of their key aspects today. Being inspired in the same manner, all such writings spiritually nourish the fervent followers of those various spiritual paths. Human beings need to rely on a practice and also on writings to refer to, according to their personal aspirations. The soul must be nourished in this way, just as the physical body is fed by other means. The laws of life cannot be circumvented. From time immemorial, humans have felt within themselves a call and have established rituals, songs and a personal commitment according to their own evolution and the teachings at their disposal. How can one not feel what is essential to the incarnate being: the guidance of the higher powers. Not all beings find access to a way, a practice capable of answering needs that are sometimes difficult to understand and to interpret adequately in such circumstances. Happy are those who find the guide corresponding to them. Trial and error are sometimes necessary for this – doesn't everything have its raison d'être! When touched by grace, the soul generates the best and guides the seeker to what is suited to him or her in this incarnation. There is every reason to hope. This is how it is.
