Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, March 17, 2014 – 10:00 a.m.

Human beings can be incorrigible; the same situations recur over time concerning the same events which are of importance to our Mission here below. Each Master has his own personality, and that of our dearest Parthasarathi is not the least of them. It has marked our Mission and continues to do so, sometimes resoundingly. It could not have been otherwise – abhyasis often fail to curb their impulses. The Master is and remains a human being, with what this entails, as is the case for everyone. Respecting him is paramount; the Mission has continued to grow, and in many cases, events are not easy to manage in a way that maintains the good order necessary for spiritual work. Isn't this the most important thing in this context where nothing is ever simple! Discipline, in a group of this size, must be respected so as not to undermine the effectiveness of the Master. May all our abhyasis understand the reasons for this and the remarks made here for the good of all and for the importance of our action in this world.

All is following its course as planned and will fall into place when the moment comes for the divine will to be accomplished. May our brothers and sisters gain insight into these comments and understand them, for the good of all.

We are truly doing our utmost here, so that the best may be accomplished in this Mission so dear to our hearts. Blessed are our abhyasis who are faithful to the Master and to the principles instilled in our way for the good of all. This rather special series of messages given in recent days is necessary to help our abhyasis understand the current and coming situations.
