Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, April 5, 2014 – 10:00 a.m.

Trials are to be considered as blessings. It is not easy to reach this stage of acceptance, as humans have to face so many difficulties throughout their lives. Achieving this level of wisdom is a benefit beyond words. Each incarnation presents opportunities – they should be seized, as they lead to a broader understanding of phenomena and a constructive approach to personal evolution. It takes quite some time to accept this necessity. Why would one need to be reborn if this journey offered nothing more than the preceding one? The destiny of each person is full of resources, but one must understand this principle and try to progress.

Finding the path, the one that truly suits the seeker, is a blessing. Opportunities then open up, and one should seize upon their benefits. Nothing happens by chance, everything is planned, and yet one has to understand this and not waste time. It is limited, and it cannot be made up. We try to attract the attention of our abhyasis; some of them doubt at times – it is human. They are not in a position to assess all situations and the importance of an approach such as this. It bears fruit, you can be sure. Otherwise, what need would there be for our action? We want the best for all – enlightenment is paramount. Everything happens in due time and is achieved when necessary. Advancing with confidence and perseverance leads to the goal; what motivates our abhyasis will not disappoint them. One day, the divine goal will be achieved; we are seeing to it. This is how it is.
