I am often close to you, my dear spouse, without the human shortcomings that you put up with. I lived close to an exceptional being without really realizing it. That is the problem of incarnate beings, not being able to realize the real nature of those who surround them, even when it is obvious.

"Your radiance is great; your power as a spiritual Master boundless. I have discovered the real extent of your power and it leaves me disconcerted. Was I the ideal companion? I have my doubt. Why must we be blinkered on Earth? One cannot change anything from the past anymore, they can only do their accounts and see the lacunae of the incarnation. I follow in your wake as much as possible, as well as all those who love you and support you in your heavy task.

"You must fulfil your mission until completion before coming to rejoin us and to finally taste this unique peace, which you aspire to. I am no longer the same but the best of the one whom you knew. I am joyful to be able to express myself and to tell you that I am often close to you all.

"May our love that surrounds you, carry you on the luminous path that is yours."
