It is your health condition that compelled us to suspend our daily contacts.

'The work did not stop for all that. We keep a link; a kind of thread connects us to one another. Our activity continues by itself. There are no more obstacles between us; this allows a satisfactory action. Carry on, on your way in a state of surrender. All is all right; believe me. We use your capabilities when necessary; 'the tool' is operational. You have taken a great step which allows a true collaboration. You were prepared for your current and future mission. Though we no longer exchange on a daily basis, the line of communication remains open. Relying on faith and love, you do your level best; these two driving forces compensate advantageously for the physical strength that you don't have. Let us continue together what has started so well."
