Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, July 17, 2015 – 10:00 a.m.

Life is never simple. So many trials have to be overcome. They are determined by each person's karma, which cannot be circumvented. Thus, from one lifetime to the next, a decisive journey takes place for all. Each incarnation is important, a stepping-stone in the long process leading to a culmination. Following a spiritual path is a valuable asset, the only means of saving time while proceeding to the goal, protected from what is useless. So many errors are made that could be avoided; the human being is not perfection incarnate. Otherwise, where would the challenge lie? The laws of life escape humans – even the wisest do not know everything. Many mysteries remain inaccessible to knowing. One day, perhaps, humankind will cross this threshold.

Following a spiritual path saves valuable time and, to some degree, raises the vibrations that characterise this world of matter. The world is surprising in many respects; the totality of its prodigious assets is not grasped. It will still have to evolve a great deal before all its riches can be revealed to humans themselves, once they have become capable of understanding all its subtleties. Everything in its own time. What is important for our abhyasis is to progress, to move forward in this knowledge necessary for each one's evolution. Here, all are progressing at their own pace, being nevertheless carried by the power of action of a spiritual way, in full expansion for the welfare of all who aspire to this extraordinary growth.

Blessings to all.
