Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, July 19, 2015 – 10:00 a.m.

This world is what it is; facing up to it is the best course of action. Spirituality provides life with another space that is capable of embellishing it, giving it a direction and transforming it in the noblest manner. In substance, an incarnation remains the same, but other areas are revealed to the seeker, capable of bringing fulfilment beyond one's daily worries. Progressing in this manner opens up infinite perspectives; where this path begins or ends, no one can say. Living the various aspects of this approach in an intense manner ennobles the soul. So many lives and commitments of this kind have led the seeker to where he or she is today. This quest for the Divine is the greatest wealth there is. Over time, it constitutes the most precious asset, one that is indestructible.

Opening one's heart to the plenitude of the sovereign Spirit brings positive results. It does take time to understand where the true wealth of a life really lies. Everything is decisive for the progress of the being. From one lifetime to the next, bonds are created as well as situations conducive to the blossoming of the soul when it truly aspires to merge with the Ultimate. Each step is important; persons most closed to the soul's inclination to love, one day find – sometimes without even searching for it – the way that suits them, where they are awaited, and where all possibilities open up for truly progressing and attaining the best of themselves. Life holds many surprises, and this one is the most beautiful of all. Following a spiritual path opens the way of the heart, the richest and surest one.

Blessings.
