My dear child, we have come a long way together. All these messages, which have punctuated your life for ten years are interesting in many respects. They made you become aware of our privileged relationship and will leave a sizeable crop. To my knowledge, it's unique for the moment in the Mission... There are different categories of mediums; among some of them, it's tantamount to pure imagination.

"Let us leave aside the ramblings of some people to focus on the continuation of this 'Epilogue'; there is an end to everything here below. There will still be some nice pages, with comments from each one of us and then, we will move to something else.

"We do not need these messages any more to be in contact with you. You will live these contacts in the future in another way. Don't worry, you will not be forgotten; our relationship will be different yet equally enriching. The privileged people who have access to these writings will have leisure to come back to them, to become imbued with them more deeply and to appreciate them at their true worth.

"Blessings to all."
