Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, September 25, 2015 – 10:30 a.m.

Everything is going well for him, and all is for the best. Our beloved Kamlesh is assessing the scope of the task awaiting him. He will be able to face up to it. We did not choose him in vain; he will take the necessary measures in due time for the good of this expanding Mission. Sahaj Marg is not trivial; its action goes well beyond people's perception. We repeat ourselves, but what else can be done in this world of illusions so often deceived by false appearances.

Happy Birthday to our dear son, chosen by all our hearts – we who are gathered here for this very special event for which our blessings are already particularly focused on him. We will come back to this later. The great day is approaching; may all give due attention to this special time. The best to this Mission and to all those who keep it working on a daily basis.
