Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, November 20, 2015 – 10:00 a.m.

Love saves one from everything, it is said. For our part, the love that is distilled here is not insignificant. Our action is multi-faceted, operating at all possible levels. This humanity is suffering. How can one do better when negativity is increasingly spreading in a manner that limits human beings to an exacting stage of their evolution. Nothing is ever easy for any of them. The only refuge that is viable and, most importantly, lasting, is found above the miasmas of this world – within oneself, in the depths of the being where the best can take place and, above all, defy time. That which is attained at the spiritual level is enduring and constitutes a very precious asset on this journey, one that is necessary for the elevation of the soul. The soul is the most precious possession of the incarnate being. It is one's own asset in the face of the Eternal – that indefinable power before which the human being is, nevertheless, very small.

Following a spiritual path saves time on the journey of the Spirit at the highest level. Many aspects are to be considered in the movement of life, but spirituality is the most subtle and the most decisive for one's individual evolution. All are on their way, in accordance with the deep yearning of the soul to find its path, one that suits it and provides the best opportunity for it to blossom. Many approaches exist, and each one has its own characteristics capable of satisfying the seeker. Happy and blessed are those who find one and take full advantage of what it offers. May our brothers and sisters go ever further on this journey of the Spirit, under our blessings.
