Do not worry about what happens to these messages; there are good elements around you who will be able to manage the situation. It will be about respecting the form and the contents of it, without trying to suppress anything. We repeat it: correcting a mistake in the French language, yes, but altering them to the liking of those who will have to decide about their fate would be a mistake and a lack of respect for what we wanted to convey. That is not yet the case; let's finish this 'Epilogue' and time will decide on their future life.

"As concerns M. and J., a page is being turned, another life awaits them; we thank them for the work they have achieved so heartily. They will remember with emotion this period, which they did not realize really how much it was enlightening.

"Life is movement, change, evolution; they have yet to complete this work, then they will set out for another direction. Under our benevolent eye, they will be able to spread all that these messages have brought to them.

"With our blessings."
