Friday, July 7, 2000 - 10:00 a.m.

Do not fear anything, wherever you may be, we remain in contact. Even if this does not result in a written message, you can rest reassured, we can communicate in all circumstances. In another vein, you will note that the remoteness of M. and J. does not change anything to your relationship and the follow-up of our business.

"The modern means are very efficient; distances do not matter any more and information can circulate freely, without any problem. Many individuals would be able to communicate with us, but in your industrialized societies where man does not any more know how to interiorize himself, he blocks latent capabilities which cannot develop. He needs action, noise; his senses are perpetually on the alert. He does not know any more how to listen to nature, or to respect his body and its basic needs. He loses his balance, his health, as he is caught up in a world that's in madness, which inexorably moves him away from the real goal of life. Will he, one day, revert to more wisdom, by discovering the multiple treasures of a life where there is respect for balance between the material and the spiritual? It is the goal we have set for ourselves in bringing to the world this remarkable tool which is our method."

Babuji