Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, March 19, 2016 – 10:00 a.m.

A fervent and calling heart is always heard and receives accordingly. Long is the path, that of realisation, which can be attained in this world itself through a very special adjustment of subtle energies. It does take time to achieve it; reaching the goal is the culmination of this journey, so often mentioned here in this special process that prepares the seeker to fulfil this longing. Each incarnation brings an essential element to a person's evolution, as planned by this Ultimate Power whose greatness is beyond human assessment. The teachings of Sahaj Marg and the implementation of some basic concepts critical to a person's advancement provide for this. Nothing can be forced; only a profound call of the heart can be fulfilled and truly meet that very special yearning. Reaching the divine goal opens new perspectives upon the Infinite, challenging the astonished seeker who faces a higher power that can be sensed, though not actually grasped in all its subtlety – and even less so in its greatness. A human being feels so small before this power – how can one define it, let alone understand what it truly is, where it begins and where its action ends. It is normal for seekers who are truly committed to this quest for the Divine to go to the very limits of their own understanding. Then the main thing remains: surrender, love as advocated here, in its divine Reality. This very special energy opens the hearts and minds of our abhyasis. We can see their progress, an extraordinary advancement that cannot be defined in human terms. Real surrender to the Divine leads to apotheosis. So it is.
