Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, March 24, 2016 – 10:00 a.m.

Sufferings are not in vain, as we have said often enough. It is not easy to take on such a journey with surrender and joy – a joy that allows one to transcend the heaviness and trials that an incarnation holds in its numerous aspects. The laws of karma are inescapable, in what can be painful or good. Thus what must be is accomplished, revealing the being in its initial beauty. We are witnessing the journey of great and beautiful souls. The path of Sahaj Marg attracts and motivates them, one might say. They see in it a means to grow, to perfect what already exists – but even more, to go further, onto these enchanted shores where the united Masters prepare the best that can be, well committed as they are to this action and more attentive than ever to this humanity in distress. They can't do everything they would like. They act in their own manner with all possible love, without being able in the current era to remedy all ills. Preparing the future era is for them a priority in action, their dearest wish. How to make life more just and humans more fervent and active in this spiritual journey that is so instrumental in their evolution! Nothing beautiful or great can be built without an investment at all levels. Our action is broad and special in its results; they cannot be easily assessed, but the approach is worthwhile, you can be sure.

To you all, motivation for the best, under our blessings.
