Thursday, July 13, 2000 - 10:00 a.m.

It would be good that my son comes to see you. That could be the start of a new relationship, and would facilitate contacts that we wish between him and us through your intermediary. Speak to M. and see with him the possible matching dates.

"He would be happy if this plan succeeded, but we cannot force things.

"My son is very tired and he does his best. It is necessary to provoke this contact and to see what can result from it; both of you are particular, and it is not easy to bring you where we wish to. He yet aspires to this kind of communication; it is the human relation between you both that is lacking and that slows down the process.

"Wish this meeting ardently, invest yourself completely in this thought and see it materializing. We hope that 'the event' will happen."

Babuji