Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, August 28, 2016 – 10:00 a.m.

Your ardent soul is calling us, and it is heard according to our laws and the ancient ties that exist between us. Why not emphasise it once more; this fact gives a special appeal to these writings. They are not ordinary; what makes them special will become apparent in the future and render them even more valuable than they are today. Such changes as these will occur here below, vibrationally and in many respects, today's world will seem very distant. These comments may sound utopian, but big events are in the making for the future, where a general transformation will occur, giving humanity a completely different motivation to truly progress in the way we understand it. May our brothers and sisters rest assured that everything will proceed towards what is good, what is best for humanity, which is in distress in many respects, without the possibility of any real help being given. May the thoughts of all our brothers and sisters converge towards the best, the good of all, especially as regards the general elevation in the level of spirituality. Everything is well underway. Blessings to all.
