Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, September 12, 2016 – 10:00 a.m.

Certain events of the past mark history for a very long time; it is dismaying to see what hatred can generate in this world. When will human beings come to their senses! Maintaining hatred is never good. It is dismaying to all those who are working here or elsewhere, for the good and for peace here below.

How many more centuries will it take for humanity to reach a sufficient level of consciousness to allow it to establish rules that favour harmony between peoples, leading at last to the building of a world where peace reigns, facilitating an unprecedented expansion of consciousness. That time will come; we are working towards it. Nothing is ever easy on this planet where rebellion is constant. May all our brothers and sisters work for the good as we understand it. A perfect world is in the making; it is up to each one to visualise it and to personally work in that direction. The best to all, under our blessings.
