Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, May 27, 2017 – 10:00 a.m.

Let yourself be carried by these waves of love that embellish these pages every day. How could they be renewed with so much faithfulness if this contact did not result from a special and very strong bond. It is an ancient one, so very old, and has left its mark over time in many ways. Beautiful stories are born, they recur when necessary to the service of a great cause such as this way of Sahaj Marg. Such an odyssey will mark these times and far beyond. So many changes will occur here below; humanity must evolve considerably to take it to the next level. Our way will in the future occupy an eminent place that is not easy to imagine today. Everything is being put into place slowly, but will succeed in reaching a level that is difficult to envision at present. Our dear great son Kamlesh is now laying the foundations for what will exist in the future. May all be prepared for changes that are important and necessary for the future.

May the best be, under our blessings.
