Thursday, July 27, 2000 - 8:00 a.m.

Better days will come for the Mission of France. It will have to go through a difficult period beforehand. The abhyasis will have to hold together and to overcome their usual disagreements. It is this union which will enable them to overcome the difficulties which will arise inevitably. The eagerness of the most motivated ones to forge ahead in spite of everything will get stronger. Nothing is ever definitive, in one way or the other. A sincere process, a rigorous practice and cohesion between the members will get to the end of anything. Do not be sad, my daughter. France will not lapse into the Inquisition regime in all its hardness, as was the case in the past. The evil, which is believed to be suppressed, comes back sometimes unexpectedly. Your strength is in you. This is an opportunity to work so that it develops and makes potential lions of you. We are by your sides, in all cases —never doubt it."

Babuji