Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, April 24, 1999 – 8:00 a.m.

You keep a little joy in your heart, my child, it is well.
We cannot change anything in our Earthly course. We should rejoice in the good it entails.

In one week, spangles of light will dance in the sky. May you all see them with the eyes of the heart and feel them vibrate in you.

There is so much horror on Earth; when a spiritual event of this scale occurs, there is every reason to be happy.

Our brothers and sisters have well understood the importance of it and have prepared themselves as best they could.

For the next centenary, the face of the world will have changed, but that does not concern you, it is a distant future.

In the meantime, many upheavals will occur, but the Immutable, the Eternal, will not be affected by them.

These are mere incidents in the order of the universe:
'Live, die, this order will not be modified.'

Consider yourselves as being a miniscule dot in this grand scheme.
