We are preparing you for a constructive meeting. It is necessary that my son sees who you are, and also the extent of our love for you. Do not worry, as you usually do; on that day, everything will go as well as possible. The contact will be eventually established between you and you will stop blocking things. On the human level, you are alike in many respects; you are not easy to influence. Sooner or later, the 'historical' meeting will take place. The past and the present will merge and memories of a remote life will resurface. You are old acquaintances; these ancient bonds have not fostered so far a Master-disciple relationship. Time has come to carry on regardless, and to achieve what must be achieved. My child, meditate, prepare in your heart, intensely, for another stage of your life. If your dearest wish is always to serve us, you will have more opportunity than you could possibly do. It's up to you to act accordingly."
