Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, May 22, 1999 – 10:00 a.m.

When you come to join us, you will be amazed to see the true face of those you have known and loved. You will have pleasant surprises. Your life is heavy to bear in some ways, but you will realize that exceptional beings surrounded you and you did not know it.

The apparent simplicity of a person can hide treasures of a very great value. You have been very lucky in this regard.

The one who gave birth to you is very luminous. Her courage and pragmatism in this incarnation helped you to structure yourself well and keep your feet firmly on the ground. This is the gift I wanted to give you today, by highlighting the one who was your mother.

Don't be sad in thinking of her sufferings, which are yours today. You believed you understood her – it is by living things in one's own flesh that one can really know.

All of you, one day or another, will be confronted with real suffering, your own or that of a dear one. It is in these difficult moments that life takes on its full meaning.

You realize your limits, your powerlessness to control certain situations.

You become aware of the precariousness of life. While suffering in your body, you suffer in your soul. You open yourselves to the misery of others – the creature is weak and helpless in the face of ordeals. The only recourse is God, He is all-powerful. The only law to be respected in all circumstances is His, because, remember: All is nothing, God is all.
