Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, June 2, 1999 – 10:00 a.m.

The conclusion of all that's been said is that there are two possible roads to follow.

The choice is yours.

You can dawdle at your convenience, considering yourselves happy in doing so.

For you, life is long, one has to make the most of it.

Or, you may want to maximize your chances and not rest on your meagre attainments.

Being part of the elite is not for everyone.

Except in very special cases, we give each of you the same opportunities. It is up to you to make the most of what you receive.

We were talking about the leading pack; the one that sets the pace and draws along those who can follow.

We are moving forward slowly, bit by bit, with our words, so as not to frighten the weakest. Know that you all receive the same care and our tenderness. We want to lead each one of you, without distinction, to the most beautiful success possible.

Surrender yourselves completely to the Master, offer him your life force, without the least resistance and an inner terrain ready to receive the divine seed.

Be blessed.
