Do not become obsessed with certain wordings in the messages. It is good to be strict and to write what is correct, but your dictionaries have deficiencies. Rectify and make adjustments if necessary, as has already been said.

It's the meaning of the words that is important as well as the vibration they emit. That is something you all have not yet integrated well.

You who are concerned with this work, you want to do your level best, and we are appreciative.

All these sentences that can seem insignificant are linked together to form a whole, capable of helping you in precise moments of your existence.

These writings must nourish you and resonate in you like a friendly presence, enlighten you, or quite simply reassure you.

In certain circumstances of your lives, you will have in mind what has been said, and your way of acting will express itself according to what surfaces in your consciousness.

Often, you want to do the right thing and you go off in directions that are not necessarily right for you or for the others.

Who has the absolute truth!

We give you this guiding thread to help you through the twists and turns of life. In addition to your practice, we try to equip you as well as possible to face up to things, helped by various means including this form of teaching.

Your libraries are full of books – some read them, others don't.

This daily message will perhaps become a companion on the path, easy to read.

That is what we wish for you all.

Each day a different topic, many have been addressed.

Some among you will make good use of them, we are sure of it.
