

Sunday, August 13, 2000 - 10:00 AM

My dear son,

"The best of your well-intentioned informants are nevertheless human beings, with blinkers, feelings and emotions—because of which, in certain circumstances, they are mistaken. Through this channel, we could establish, if we manage to convince you, a kind of 'middle way,' capable of tipping the balance in terms of decisions that you must take concerning individuals or in complex situations.

"It is up to you to see and decide about the future of our project. We have, for the time being, a channel who is reliable and well prepared for this kind of communication. We do not want to impose anything on you, it is up to you to decide as you know, and we respect your way of doing. We suggest you this possibility; that is all.

"As the Mission is expanding, problems are unavoidable. People are not easy to understand in terms of their cogitations and behaviours. The human beings have no real friends among their fellow creatures, they must therefore rely on inspirations from their heart, could they nonetheless step back sufficiently from particular situations.

"We are close to you, my dear son, as we told you many times. So it will be until the end. Thereafter, will come the blessed day, when you come to rejoin us and delight in a well-deserved rest. We surround you with our love."

Babuji