Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, july 22, 1999 – 8:00 a.m.

If we observe you all and highlight what must be corrected in your behaviour, it is not to play the bogeyman.

A master cares about his aspirants, he wants the best for them; if we don't do it for you, who will? Would you put up with it from your family, your friends? We are not judgemental, that is the difference.

We want to see you all evolve and get rid of your dross, the objective is very different.

Lightening your burden, purifying and refining yourself in all your perceptions – including that of feeling us close to you – all this is one aspect of the spiritual work.

We want to make you stronger in the face of trials, more detached from the superfluous, which can only weigh you down.

We suggest positive, constructive attitudes to shape your personality.

A spiritual approach requires efforts on all levels. Following a method, even if it is effective, also involves a transformation of your character.

It is a desirable whole, a total commitment, if you want to achieve the best results.

It is a choice, we cannot make it for you.
