My dear daughter, yes, many heads of state of important countries call upon great mediums; this is not new. In this country, this gift is not taken seriously; scientists, on the other hand, are deemed more reliable and are respected.

You are well placed to know that minds are not really open on this subject.

As the world cannot be changed, one's activity must be focused on one's progress on the spiritual plane. Only this dimension will open the doors of 'true' knowledge to you all. This is most important; it will be the key that opens the doors of the heavens to you. Your educational baggage, like your other belongings, will remain on Earth. These things will have helped you realise yourself in this life, in your various activities. They will no longer be useful to you in another dimension, so don't pride yourselves on your knowledge and your financial situation.

You will have to start again on other bases. Your soul, in its pure state, divests itself of this kind of attainment, which is the fruit of a transitory incarnation. It takes all kinds to make a liveable world – scholars of all sorts, manual workers.

What would your society be without this diversity? It creates an equilibrium that you all benefit from. The baker is just as respectable as a high-level graduate.

Consider yourselves as equal, complementary and indispensable to one another, at levels you do not even suspect.

That is the way it is.
