Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, August 1, 1999 – 10:00 a.m.

For you, we ask you to endure your current life, as much as possible, with a smile.

Many of our aspirants are disappointed; they thought that having a Master and being on a path like Sahaj Marg would eliminate their everyday problems, especially family and health problems. If you all knew our lives well, you would see that we were not spared.

You settle up the remainders of previous lives and the mistakes made in this one. No path, no Master, whatever his stature, will be able to settle your little affairs to your liking.

The objective does not lie there, you must understand that. If you follow us with this kind of motivation, it will not happen. We cannot, simply by our good will, make you walk on a carpet of roses.

The roses, you have them, but the thorns too. Study the lives of all the great Masters who punctuated history, and see what they experienced to reach the highest level of holiness, and what they went through.

It is by going ever deeper inside yourselves that you will find not only answers, but the strength to endure what you have to live.

Without this obligatory process, there is no possible evolution.

You should resign yourselves; either you advance in wisdom and you accept your life, or you stagnate by refusing, and you have the same road to walk, minus the grace.
