Whispers from The Brighter World

Plunge into yourself, where the best of an incarnation is fulfilled. Each incarnation provides an element that is indispensable for the development of the being and determined by each one's karma. These concepts are not easy to accept. Who [among you] really know themselves and can say that they are the masters of their destiny; destiny makes light of desires and all the different aspirations that a person can have. What must be will be — that is how it is, may we say once again. Following a spiritual way maps out the path ahead. It is easier to hand oneself over to the living Master, custodian of our powers, who to some extent is capable of lightening the laws of life. Such laws are unsparing and very stringent; only faith allows one to fully trust. Reaching that stage of wisdom is a remarkable event. Sahaj Marg helps one advance and develop in proportion to one's deep call, to which we respond. No two lifetimes are alike. Each one of them provides a new element that is decisive in the progress of the seeker. Meditation leads to a state of considerable grace, sometimes revealing itself over time. It is so good to experience it when it truly emerges. Life then takes on a completely different meaning; a door opens onto the bliss that is so well hidden from the eyes of humans amid the turbulence of life's ups and downs — no matter. The main thing is there, and one day it is revealed in all its magnitude, when it is desired and sought after as it should be. Then another life can begin, one that is supported by our very attentive care."
