Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, February 6, 2016 — 10:00 a.m.

All is forgotten when bliss captivates the whole being; in these very special moments, physical and moral suffering fade away. Faith and surrender to the spiritual Master allow one to hold within oneself the key to this sacred place — a place where it is so good to take refuge. One's life is never simple; all our brothers and sisters go through trials. Such is the movement of life in its many manifestations. These ordeals follow the laws of karma rigorously, and they generally make one stronger. Understanding the need for surrender is a strength — it supports the being in everyday life, and in many circumstances it helps a person overcome that which obscures his or her path. Following a spiritual way makes one stronger and leads to action that is generally positive. Nothing is simple in this world, and sometimes just being convinced of this makes one grow in wisdom. Spiritual Masters are never spared; some of them have left a sufficient number of striking examples in this world, to which one can refer.

"May all our brothers and sisters give priority to their practice and their physical and moral commitment in order to better convince themselves to act with faith and courage in all circumstances. We support them much more than it may seem. Even if we cannot solve all their problems, we attend to their spiritual advancement, which is so very crucial in an incarnation. Our dear Parthasarathi joins me today, as he surely does very often, to convey all his blessings to all of you."
