Thursday, August 17, 2000 - 10:00 a.m.

Trying months are ahead for my son. He will be hurt in his deepest being and will need more and more to turn to us. We cannot save him these ordeals as they belong to his path. Through this means of communication, we can express all our compassion to him. His health will feel the effects [of these ordeals]. He will need much love, and in these particular circumstances, you could show a sign to him, without your usual restraint. My dear daughter, you see, life holds for each person bad blows that cannot be avoided. Do not forget, we were not spared. That is how it is, whatever our level is. We must face up to things in all humility, while expressing our acceptance and unfailing love. Our lives are exemplary in this sense, since they do not save us from any painful aspect of the fate given to humans."

Babuji