At the ashram, things must happen on their own, simply with faith and love. It only takes some people of goodwill; there are so many of them. Many of you have made good progress. Why waste all that in groundless conflicts? You should focus on your personal work. Be understanding; who is not mistaken?

"Let grow in you this flame that will raise you towards the Absolute, the Divine.

"It is simpler than you think. You make life complicated for yourself by falling into the trap of a material existence, difficult in many respects. Times will come when you will have to stick together, when you will regret these blessed years in which you did not really manage to take advantage of all that was offered to you. Make more efforts than ever to rise. This inner strength, which will develop in you, will help you to face up to future difficulties. Love one another. You can read this in scriptures of all times. Consider this truth as essential.

"Blessings to all."
