Do not be afraid of linking up personally with my son. In the past, your attitude towards him had not encouraged him to come towards you. You must, on both sides, forge ahead and overcome these reactions that compromised the situation from the outset. We have been patient; you had to experience painful events and to progress towards accepting a special relationship subjected to these mediumistic contacts. This relationship with us is old and more normal to you than to him who had to accept it fully. The barriers being removed, we will be able to advance. You may think that we insist strenuously. Incarnate beings need these ceaseless repetitions when we want to make them make progress along our views. As soon as you get away from what is considered as normality, you create in yourself (more exactly in your mind) an attitude of suspicion, useful most of the time, but which is not justified as far as our matter is concerned. When you come and rejoin us, you will have eventually all the elements to help you understand our insistence. Little by little, you end up accepting that which did not seem possible to you before. Your love and your faith in us must be enough for you for the moment, with our blessings."
