Saturday, September 9, 2000 - 10:00 a.m.

You are going through a trying period; we do not want to add to your tiredness. This rest does not mean that it's all over. Our contacts will resume, as fruitful as they have been so far. We are happy with the gift Michel has received from his father. He is a being out of the ordinary; he is making good progress here.

"He did not forget this son who has always made him feel proud and who is now serving us, being chosen for a double mission, humanitarian and spiritual. He must forge ahead in these directions and make this dual process take on its full dimension, without forgetting the power of speech, which he is especially endowed with.

"With our support and our blessings, take rest, my daughter. Try to find a solution to this rather constraining health problem."

Babuji