Monday, October 16, 2000 - 10:00 a.m.

My dear son,

"Your numerous trips around the world result in very positive effects. Your influence gives the best image to Sahaj Marg whose prerogatives are increased tenfold by a new status, and your action goes hand in hand with that status. It is necessary to counter all the intensifying hatred between certain ethnic groups, which is underlain by religious motives, impossible to reason with. Men kill one another for principles, even more than for territories. What we can provide them with is healthy and pacific, but is not accessible to all. We are working in the best direction; this work carried out in the shade provides salvation. You are the catalyst of all this divine energy, a power granted to man for his salvation. We feel your heart's appeals, least sighs, expectations. Your role is not easy, but it is productive. You progress on a path that you chose, carrying a torch that is not close to dying out. Continue in this upward way, with peace in your heart, since you fill ours with joy."

Babuji