Once this series is completed, according to the circumstances, we will give our point of view on such-and-such an event, or question that it will possibly raise in you.

"This series will constitute the fabric of a collection called 'Reflections'. It will enable us to remain in contact with our medium and to make those who so wish, benefit from it. With time, these contacts will aim more particularly to testify to our love for her, as well as those who appreciate them. On both sides, it is not easy to stop this 'heart to heart'. It has created very strong bonds, and maintained a flame, which is nowhere near dying out. This Master-to-disciple relationship knows no end. Don't be sad, my dear daughter, we know what these contacts mean to you. They are the expression of what binds us. Don't worry; this strong bond has nothing to do with the precariousness of human relations. It has outlived successive lives and it brings us to this special relationship, although we did not meet physically in this one. We will continue to advance in this way of love that is the driving force of it. It is the most beautiful thing which remains when all dross has disappeared."
