The only true conquest is there, in what we have just told you. This program cannot appear appetizing to you, and is not to satisfy your curiosity, but it is the only means for you, one day, to reach levels of consciousness that will give you the only worthwhile knowledge. That is the depiction, there is nothing thrilling about it, except if one views it from a purely mystical viewpoint.

"You can wish to advance slowly and pick flowers here and there on your road. Be careful however, some of them can be dangerous. Man often falls for misleading appearances.

"The harshness of the ground cannot be appealing to you all; we understand that. We propose a set of rules that puts the emphasis on what must be made to foster your ascension; we propose—that is all."
